Most of the Money Is Earned by "Taking the Trouble" to Earn It—Why Not "Take the Trouble" to SAVE Something on Your Purchases?

"I might save a dollar, now and then, by reading the ads—but it would take a lot of time and trouble." Some housewives take that view. It's not a sound view. It's not "good business." For it is possible to save SOMETHING on a majority of the purchases made for the home. And this systematic saving, will count heavily, and be greatly worth-while. For their reading and study of the "ads" is simply the adoption of business methods in managing the home. And the home that is managed in a business way is usually a FINANCIAL SUCCESS. And, in the home where there is usually a money surplus, instead of a deficit, content and hope and aspiration are apt to thrive.

This newspaper brings to you the "store news" every day. It shows you HOW, WHERE and WHEN money may be saved in making your usual purchases. If, to read the "ads" seems like "a trouble," then the whole scheme of living is a trouble—rather than an OPPORTUNITY.

ALASKA NOTES

Word was received from Fairbanks recently that Ed. Gardner, a prospector in the Bonified country, was missing, and that his friends had started a searching party out to look for him. Gardner showed up o. k. at Nenana.

Robert T. Smith, of McCarthy, has sent to the Arctic Brotherhood of that place a German mask and helmet which he picked up in France as a member of Co. E, Sixth U. S. Engineers.

Oliver Lee and Mrs. Gerdrum of Nenana were married recently at the above city. Lee is a well known old timer in Alaska.

Jessie McLaughlin, an old timer of Dawson, and well known in many camps in Alaska, died recently in California of influenza.

On complaint filed by Dr. H. J. McCallum Mrs. A. A. Zimmerman was placed in the detention hospital at Fairbanks charged with being insane.

Among the recent arrivals in Fairbanks from the outlying districts was William Volkman, who is interested in several mining claims on Ophir Creek, the scene of the strike last Summer. Since the new discovery was made an organization has been formed which is known as the Ophir Creek Mining and Development Company, of which Mr. Volkman is the superintendent and business agent. The company plans to do extensive work on their holdings during the coming Summer and it is for the purpose of securing the needed material and supplies that Superintendent Volkman was in Fairbanks. It is expected that a large force of men will be employed by the company next Summer.

Mail Carrier Johnny Palm recently arrived in Fairbanks with mail from Chitana and Yukon river points. He reports about two feet of snow on the trail.

Doris Siskief, who made such a fine speech upon the occasion of the draft boys leaving McCarthy last June, died at Camp Dodge, Iowa, from Spanish influenza.

Judge Edward F. Medley, of Cordova, who recently went to Rochester, Minn., to have an operation in Mayo Brothers hospital, writes that he is much benefited. He is visiting at his home in Boston for a time and will return to Rochester and have a goitre removed.

Lloyd Botts, chief of the Nome Fire Department, died at Seattle on December 5th, from influenza. Botts was the 35th passenger of the steamship flu. He had lived at Nome for 18 years. He had been acting as chairman of the committee that was looking after the affairs of other Alaskans who had died at Seattle of influenza.

Completing a voyage of nearly two months during which the little vessel battled with huge seas and roaring gales, the power schooner Apollo, Capt. Edward Opsjon, and Eunice, Capt. Wallace Langley, of the Kuskokwim Fishing and Trading Company, arrived in Seattle recently from the company's fishing station on Kuskokwim Bay, Bering Sea. The little craft brought consignments of salt salmon in barrels and a big shipment of cranberries from the Kuskokwim river flats.

Road Commissioner Wilson has made a good record this year. Despite the fact that the Territory had one of the worst seasons known for terrific floods, but one bridge, that over the Nizna was partly washed out, and his season's work still stands as a monument to his skill as a road builder. The Nizna at any time is a hard stream to control and during a year of phenomenal rainfall and glacial freshets it was doubly so.—(Valdez Miner.)

Despite the cold weather the mining game on the Little Eldorado, in the Fairbanks district, will go on just the same and next Spring will witness the same activity as before. Late arrivals from that creek state that at least seven outfits will be taking dirt out this winter, among whom will be Teddy Rehn and associates, about 20 men being employed by this one outfit alone. It is said that Little Eldorado will cut some figure in the mining game this year.

Andrew Davis, a son of the late Captain Davis, who was a guard in the jail at Kodiak, died January 5th, according to information received at Valdez.

The coming year will bring many good things to Valdez. The proposed wireless station, the opening of the Granby property, the Mineral Creek properties, the big concentrator, the proposed stage and freight line from Fairbanks to Valdez and the aerial mail service to Fairbanks to be inaugurated by a Valdez boy who is now in the aviation service, will all attract attention to this section. The new cannery will also add largely to the city's revenue. Our resources are as yet practically untouched and development will be rapid "when the boys come home."—(Valdez Miner.)

COMING BACK NORTH TO GOD'S OWN COUNTRY

Well Known Klondiker Anxious to Get Back to Great Northland Once More.

(Dawson News)

A well known Klondiker who left last Fall for the Outside drifted South as far as San Francisco, and went to work near there. He writes to a Dawson friend under recent date as follows:

"Well, old pal, after many moons, here's the dope on the great Outside, as promised. I've had plenty chance to size it up since coming out in August. Coming down, I stopped at all way points and saw many Yukoners in the fishing business, and with a couple of exceptions, that were getting by in a small way. It was hard rustling and little results. One well known old-timer told me he lost $5,000 at it. He says you hear all about the one that makes the killing, but not a word of the great number that go broke at the fishing game.

"I stayed around Vancouver and Victoria three months and I guess I saw all the Yukoners. A lot of those who came out this Fall are working in the shipyards and they tell me that when lost time is deducted, the wages, although they would be high in normal times, merely pay expenses now. There are some men making big money—rivers working by piecework principally—but for the bunch, they are only a few jumps ahead of the wolf all the time. Prices seem to be figured so that there is very little over for the worker.

"Of course, the young fellows with no dependents and living home or two or three in a flat have a surplus and most of them spend it. That makes it appear as everyone has it; but look closely at the man raising a family or at those with any dependents and you don't see them with any surplus. Business, however, is booming, and the prices charged remind me of Dawson in the old days. There sure must be a fat profit somewhere between producer and consumer.

"There were over 5,000 idle men in Victoria and Vancouver when I left, and they couldn't get three dollars a day for digging graves to bury 'flu' victims.

"I am handling a crew of men here. Some of them have been here twenty to thirty years, and they look at me as though I had hoofs. A man that has not been here at least ten years has no right to a boss's job, they think. This California is a beauty spot, but for a man that has to sweat for his money, piling it up by nickels and dimes is too slow at my time of life.

"Me for the North in the Spring; back to the land of the big chance for a home stake, where a man's a monarch regardless of his bankroll, where the skies are blue, where hearts beat true, away up North, not far from you—I'm going."

WAITERS AND OTHERS IN WARSAW HOTELS WANT SOME PROFITS

LONDON, Jan. 25.—Waiters and janitors of Warsaw, who are among the few having steady work and good pay, have gone on strike and house servants are expected to follow. The servants even now consent to work only if the mistress does her share of the household labors, especially dishwashing and similar services. Waiters demand 15 per cent. of the profits of the hotels and restaurants. Cooks ask 25 per cent. Janitors demand a 10-hour day, with the front doors closed at 9 o'clock at night. As the tenants have no keys to the front door of apartment houses, they are obliged to say indoors through fear of being compelled to pass the night in the streets. Janitors, however, express a willingness for tenants to go out after 9 o'clock and come in late if they pay a fine of one mark for each time they thus trouble him.

GERMANS ARE FREE IN RUSSIA SAYS THOMAS WHITTEMORE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Thomas Whittemore, who for three years represented the American committee for the relief of Russian refugees says: "Today if the Germans are everywhere in Russia; they are freer as regards the country by the armistice than they ever were before. The armistice, so far as Germany is concerned, is a dodge, and Germany is an artful dodger. The war is over but a greater war is beginning in the world, and it includes the war for Russia's foodstuffs, raw materials and natural resources. Whatever terms we may impose on Germany, she is going to have a great part in that way. We can only hope the Allies will run a parallel course and help Russia recreate herself."
